

ITHACA HUTCHINSON AEROSPACE AND INDUSTRY

HUTCHINSON®

We Make It Possible

Hutchinson Aerospace and Industry was founded in 1943 as Barry Controls to solve shock and vibration problems for the United States military. Since then, we have been a world leader in the development of unique and custom mounting solutions needing shock attenuation and vibration isolation. Hutchinson Worldwide acquired Barry Controls in 2000, and today, we serve a wide range of diverse global customer applications by leveraging our extensive materials expertise.

We are well recognized as a specialist in custom system design and analysis, an innovator in manufacturing and engineering, and a valuable partner to our customers. We provide engineered shock, vibration, noise, thermal and motion control solutions for all industries. Our customer-oriented philosophy allows us to provide responsive support to our customers, from prototyping and low-rate production through full production, with products that are custom suited to each customer's needs.

Innovative design and development concepts give us the ability to support customers' performance and cost targets and meet the demands of tomorrow's changing payloads and evolving technical needs. This endless variety of dynamic and cutting-edge projects provides exciting career opportunities across a wide array of fields.

Industries Served

Our products are in applications across all industries, from railways to the sky. We provide solutions to many industrial markets, including energy, aerospace, medical, machinery, chemicals, food, textiles, computers, construction and more.

Cultivating partnerships with the defense industry is as important to us today as it was when we first started. On land, on the sea and in the air, military equipment and vehicles continue to rely on our solutions for safe and effective operation.

As remaining future focused is critical to our success, we have also positioned ourselves as a key collaborator in helping to solve vibration, shock and noise problems for the newest of industries, such as electric vehicles.

Want to learn more about what we can do for you? Visit hutchinsonai.com.

989.875.2052

hutchinsonai.com

1300 S County Farm Rd
Ithaca, MI 48847